

$3.50 Recipe Cures Weak Kidneys, Free

Relieves Urinary and Kidney Troubles
Backache, Straining, Swelling, Etc.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, of too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $2.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 13126 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has a great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

1910 MINE IS SOLD FOR SEVENTY-FIVE THOUSAND

An important transaction and one that should have a very great influence on the future development of the new camp at Barrett Springs took place on Tuesday. On that day J. M. Blood, O. Thorpe, J. Haywood and G. F. Siebert, the owners of the 1910 mine, sold it to Thomas Kenrs, of San Francisco, and "Patsy" Clark, of Spokane. The purchase price is said to have been $75,000. It is currently reported that there was a large cash payment and that the balance will be paid in a short time. The newcomers are expected to take immediate control.—National Miner.

Scene from "Our New Minister" at the Nevada Theatre Thursday Evening.

Denman Thompson and George W. Ryer's comedy of life in Hardscrabble, N. H., "Our New Minister," will appear at the Nevada Theatre, Thursday evening, October 6.

After the success of ten years, it is safe to say that the play needs but little if any introduction to the theatre-goers. It is an uproarious comedy of the quaint side of life in a small New England village. Its characters speak in the twists and draws of New Englanders, but at heart and in action they are about the same as other people of small communities far removed from the main lines of travel and progress. The authors tell their story humorously in the main although it has moments of intense drama. They first picture the village of Hardscrabble, on a sunny afternoon, the country store shows well in front, with wares strung out attractively from the rain-stained eaves of a long porch. The White Mountains tower down upon the settlement in the distant rear. At the rise of the curtain the town is agog over the reported discharge from jail of Lem Ransom, a former citizen who was convicted of complicity in a robbery. Lem is known as a shiftless character and the town is none too glad to have him back. Darius Startle, the town constable, starts first of the many funny angles of the story by volunteering to keep Lem in sight and in order. The constable is an

LOSES $2000 BY OLD BUNCO GAME

TIN BOXES ARE SWITCHED AND RENO VISITOR CARRIES OFF THE WRONG ONE

Through the time worn game of "switching bank rolls," B. Becla, an unsophisticated Frenchman and a resident of Reno, was robbed of $2200 last Wednesday night. The crime was committed in a room in a building on K street in the block between Fourth and Fifth streets. Whether the robbery was carried out by two men of Sacramento who speak French fluently or whether Becla was followed from Reno by clever crooks who knew that he had the money on his person is a problem that the police are trying to solve.

Becla arrived in Sacramento Wednesday night from Los Angeles, to which place he had gone from Reno to settle an estate left by his brother. When he alighted from the train he carried in a suitcase a tin box containing a roll of bills fastened with a rubber band, amounting to $2200. When he arrived in front of the Walsh-Richardson store at Fifth and K streets he approached Patrolman Robinson and asked the officer to point the way to a lodging house owned or managed by some person who spoke the French language.

Robinson directed him to the lodging house at Second and L streets, conducted by Angelo & Andre. Becla started to find the lodging house, but had only turned away from Patrolman Robinson when he was met by two men who addressed him in French. He was invited to take a drink by his new-found friends and accepted the invitation.

According to his statement to the police, Becla was then invited to spend the night with his new-found friends, and as they were his countrymen, readily assented. To the best of his memory he was taken to a room in a building over a store, in the windows of which he had seen a stock of harness and saddles. Becla met the men who had swindled him in front of the Walsh-Richardson store, but it is not thought that he was taken to a room above that store as these rooms are in the Stohl building and are given over to offices. It is thought that Becla was taken to some lodging house, several of which are run in the block on K street between Fourth and Fifth.

When Becla got to his room he told his friends of his wealth and they changed a $500 bill for him, giving him the change in gold.

Yesterday afternoon Becla was placing some articles in his suitcase preparatory to taking a trip to San Francisco, from where he was going to leave for his old home in Paris. Taking out his supposed tin box he tried to open the receptacle to place some gold in it. His key would not fit, and he took the box to a locksmith and had it opened.

When he took the rubber band from what looked like a roll of greenbacks he found that he had nothing but a lot of newspaper wrapped up in "stage money" and marked "I. O. U.—Tainted."

Upon taking a second look at the tin box Becla found that it was not his, but an exact duplicate. Becla then took the bogus roll of money and the box to the police station reporting the robbery to Desk Sergeant McManus. Becla said that after reaching the room in the lodging house his companions talked of France and of the death of a brother in Los Angeles. One of the pair of robbers, of both of whom the police have good descriptions, told Becla that he was going to France and invited Becla to go along as a guest. The other was also a fluent talker. He made several trips from the room and brought back liquor each time, Becla partaking of good share of what was drunk. Becla admits that after drinking considerable liquor he went to sleep.

It is the opinion of the police that after Becla went to sleep his companions left the room, obtained the tin box, but the imitation bank roll in it, went back to Becla's room and made the change.

The tin box that was placed in Becla's suitcase was an exact duplicate of the one that he had placed his money in.

The police are inclined to believe Becla was either followed from Reno by a pair of clever crooks who knew his mission, or was seen placing his money in the tin box while in Los Angeles, and the plan to rob him was concocted in the south. Becla had absolute confidence in his new found friends, and did not take the precaution to look in his treasure box until yesterday. After giving a good description of the robbers to the police, Becla left last night for Reno, where he said he would again go to work in an endeavor to save up some more money with which to make the trip to Paris.

TWO FEATURE VITAGRAPH FILMS ON THE PROGRAM

BUTLER THEATRE PRESENTS A STRONG ATTRACTION FOR TONIGHT

The program of the Butler theater for today consists of two feature Vitagraph films that are each worth the price of admission. "The Shepherd and the Maid" is a love story in which through an accident the lovers are separated forever. It is a very beautiful story and will interest everybody. "Ancient Castles in Austria" is a scenic picture portraying some of the famous castles of Austria. "Jean and the Calico Doll" is a dog story which has much interest. The intelligence of animals makes a good picture at any time, and when it is utilized in rescuing life as this one is, the interest is immeasurably increased. "Rose Leaves" is a pretty story of love petals and their influence upon a girl's life. In babyhood, and womanhood, when temptations beset, the shower of rose petals is used with good effect. She not only breaks away from evil companions because of a shower of rose petals, but it also changes a young man's life. There is a gentle pathos connected with the picture which appeals strongly to one's emotions.
